When you can take sick leave

You can take sick leave if you're sick or you need to look after:

- your partner
- your dependent children
- someone else who depends on you.

If you've been injured

Sick leave arrangements are different if you've been injured. They depend on whether your injury is:

- covered or not by the Accident Compensation Corporation (ACC)
- an accident not related to work
- a work-related accident.

Other types of leave for helping you

Depending on your situation, a different type of leave might be able to help you, such as:

- parental leave \(external link\)^[Link: 5]
- bereavement leave \(external link\)^[Link: 6]
- domestic violence leave \(external link\)^[Link: 7].

How to take your sick leave

Let your employer know as soon as possible.
